There is usually a dearth of social engagements at the beginning of the hot weather, but so far the June weddings, the golf tournament at the County club, and, later, the informal affairs always connected with the glorious Fourth—even when it is sane—have kept society awake, at least, But next week promises to be absolutely quiet; there is not even a rumor of a large important party. The weekly dinner dance at the club seems to be the only break in a stretch of social monotony. There may be some informal affairs for Mrs. Pfahler of Kansas City, who is now the guest of the weekend with his wife at Lakeside. So many people are leaving town that Topeka promises to be half deserted. The George Gulids and Miss Mildred Gulid leave Thursday to spend the summer in Wyoming. They will be accompanied by Miss Helen Quigley of Steriling. Who is now the guest of the C. B. Reeds. Miss Ed. The most delightful of the midsummer parties given by the younger society set, was that given this morning by Miss Sophie Smithmeyer for her charming guest, Miss Ruth Wilson of Topeka. The Smithmeyer home with its very attractive interior, was an inviting looking place this morning. Large vases filled with clusters of distes and pasturitums carried out the Viting looking place with clusters of daisles and hasturtiums carried out the color scheme of yellow and white, which was the keynote of the color used in the refreshments. About 60 girls were entertained at bridge. The guest prize, a handsome brass bowl, was awarded to Miss Wilson. The first prize at cards, a brass bowl of similar design, was won by Miss Nell Greenles; the second, a brass shepeherdess basket, was won by Miss Lillian Kirchoff. The score cards were designed in a dainty water color sketch of daisles and nasturtiums. On each card table was a cluster of nasturtiums, their yellows and browns making a the rooms. Aside card table was a cluster of nasturtiums, their yellows and browns making a riot of color in the rooms. Aside from the town girls who enjoyed Miss Smithmeyer's gracious hospitality, there were a number of Topeka girls, who came down for the morning. They were Miss Mildred Morton, Miss Lucile Mills, Miss Elizabeth Mills, Miss Mary Van Vechten and Miss Helen Crawford.—The Lawrence Journal-World.
